GOMPERS AND U. S. OFFICIALS CONSIDER STRIKE

Brass Company, Smith & Egge Manufacturing Company, Bridgeport Engineering Company, Remington-Yost Company, Brel Manufacturing Company, Brel Machine Tool Company, Columbia Nut & Bolt Company, Burns & Bassick Company, Bassick Machine Company, Automatic Machine Company and several others whose names could not be learned today.

As a result of the meeting of the Manufacturers' Association held yesterday manufacturers are divided in their opinions as to the best course to pursue and nothing definite was decided at the close of the session though it is the general understanding that the question shall be left to the individual members to decide. Some factory owners today expressed themselves as willing to grant the shorter hours if demands were made upon them. Others did not know what action they would take.

Officials of the Remington-Arms & Ammunition Co. expressed themselves as satisfied with their action as being the best course for them to pursue. They did not hold themselves responsible to the association for the reason that following some differences of opinion two months ago as to the employment of Bridgeport men sprang up and when the Remington companies took the stand that they would hire men applying to them for work irrespective of whether they previously worked in Bridgeport they withdrew voluntarily from the association.

As a further consequence, a stand assumed today by the International heads of the metal trades George J. Bowen, business agent of the machinists said: "The Stewart Construction Co. deny that A. B. Taylor, a superintendent of the Stewart Co., ordered the millwrights to join the carpenters' union or quit work. We have eight foremen who will swear that they were ordered by Taylor to so instruct the millwrights." When informed of this statement today George G. Greist, general superintendent of the Stewart Construction company, replied: "This is absolutely incorrect and it is merely a subterfuge." He further intimated that it might be considered significant that the ironworkers went out on strike in sympathy with the machinists on Saturday last while the machinists were still working in the factory. This fact was later denied by J. J. Keppeler, who said that the ironworkers never struck in sympathy with the machinists but did strike on account of the millwrights.

A number of electrical workers putting up lights about the great enclosure surrounding the arms plant and the powder houses were called off the work today when it was learned they were non-union. They had been transferred from the Remington plant to the Stewart work this morning in an effort to hasten additional protection for the company.

Organizers of the Hod Carriers' Union, the Hoisting Engineers and the Die Sinkers and Drop Forgers' unions, now in this city said that their contemplated walk-outs which already have been discussed with the factory heads had been postponed until after the action of the machinists tonight. In fact all action is now awaiting the decision of tonight's meeting.

The die sinkers and drop forgers are the only trades engaged in the controversy which is not working on the construction work. They are now engaged in making bayonets, and number about 200. Should they walk out they would actually work none done in the manufacturing line by the Remington Arms & Ammunition Co. would cease.

Work of erecting several buildings, including the new employment office of the company, ceased this morning when the bricklayers reached a stage where the roof girders had to be placed. They were at once transferred to other buildings about the enclosure. It was today planned to put on wooden trusses if necessary to continue operations at the plant. This feature has not been fully decided by the factory heads today.

Friends at the conferences of the millwrights with Superintendent Greist yesterday and today had resulted in no material changes. While it was said that the hoisting engineers had decided to strike on work, this was denied by those connected with that branch of labor. It was understood that the die sinkers and drop forgers who are not to be confused with the toolmakers and machinists, had announced their intention of joining the machinists' ranks in the event that the company did not settle the affair of the millwrights.

Martin Kane, business agent of the carpenters, had little to say about the strike this morning other than that the carpenters would not arbitrate the matter. "There is nothing for us to arbitrate. As for settlement, the carpenters' good alone would say that the carpenters are strong enough to stand on their own bottom and we are not seeking the support of any other trades." A matter of agreement with the bricklayers and the hoisting engineers have an agreement to stick by the bricklayers. If they strike with the machinists they will have to account to headquarters.

A report that some millwrights had gone back to work this morning revealed the fact that four millwrights never struck and are working in the plant.

A New York paper today intimated that Vice President Johnson of the structural ironworkers was closely connected with the Congressional Frank Buchanan, formerly president of the organization at the time of the Los Angeles affair. Johnson had little to say on the subject but he was proud to have been associated with Buchanan. This view was also taken by Keppeler who comes from the same congressional district as does Buchanan.

Says He's Etor's Advance Agent, And His Boss is Coming

J. Wellington Broadhead, who claims to be the advance agent of Etor, the noted I. W. W. leader who was tried for murder in connection with the killing of some citizens during the riots at Lawrence more than a year ago, is in town. Mr. Broadhead claims that Etor is in Danbury but has refused permission by Mayor Sunderland to speak in the open air there. With the unsettled labor conditions which appear to have arisen here Mr.

HOWLAND'S

Store closes at 5 daily except Saturdays

The Weather:—Cloudy tonight and Saturday; probably thundershowers.

Every ticket tells of saving.

The 35th Mill End Sale makes the store bristle with savings.

Thousands of yellow price tickets each tell the same sort of story.

It is the story of a saving, of good merchandise at less than regular price, of service and dependability combined with true economy.

Never saw so many people at the first morning of a Mill End Sale as at this one Thursday morning. It was fine!

It was finer to see all that great lot of people satisfied with the Mill End lots and the Mill End values.

That is what counts most; the satisfaction the Mill End sale brings.

Folks who come to the sale tomorrow, and each succeeding day will be sure of that same satisfaction.

Savings will be just as emphatic and delightful.

Yes; it may be warm out of doors but the store is degrees cooler.

And Mill End savings more than repay the effort of getting here.

Thousands of Mill End Lots! Every lot a true economy!! Among them as many things for men and the home as for women's use.

THE HOWLAND DRY GOODS CO.

Broadhead says, Etor believes. Bridgeport will be a good field for him. Yesterday Mr. Broadhead visited the headquarters of the Socialist party in Main street but found nobody home. He was told that the party had moved to the new headquarters, to get permission from Superintendent Birmingham for Etor to speak in the streets. The superintendent was not in his office. This morning Broadhead sought Mayor Wilson's permission for the public speaking. The mayor was busy, however, and Broadhead after telling the newspapermen what a big organization of the I. W. W. could be found in Bridgeport, left the building saying he would return later. When he did return the mayor had gone for the day.

Committeemen Were Kept In Dark On Election Expenses

Mr. Donovan, would you want to say that the work was being done for the whole ticket?"

"If that were so, my answer would be incorrect."

Mr. Enos said that he told Mr. Jennings when soliciting a contribution that the money was needed "for the whole ticket." He said he didn't know in what business Mr. Jennings was engaged.

Frederick E. Kip, who says he votes in Montclair, N. J., and who was a Bull Moose advocate in 1912, said he had given $800 to Mr. Wheeler, treasurer of the Congressional committee. The contributions, he said, he gave almost without solicitation. He had also given to campaign funds in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where his firm, the Salts Textile Co., has factories.

He said that it was impressed on him during the campaign that Mr. Brandegee was going to have "a close call," and that funds were needed. "Who made these representations?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"Several persons, among them Mr. Kings."

"Did you know that Mr. Roraback of the state central committee spent $20,000 in the whole state for the good of the whole ticket and this committee spent $10,000 in Fairfield county alone?"

"I did not know that."

Mr. Kip said the contribution was personal and that he knew corporate contributions were forbidden by law. Just before leaving the stand, Mr. Kip was asked about difficulties his firm had had with the government relative to undervaluation of imports. He said that such cases had come up at frequent intervals but were always adjudicated.

Ira A. Kip, who votes in South Orange, N. J., modestly thought the committee picked him as a collector because he had had some experience in that line. His experience, his testimony showed, helped him in getting contributions of $250 from W. O. Bryant; $150 from W. H. Farrell; $200 from William E. Burnham; $50 from F. J. Kingsbury and $25 from W. Lashar.

Mr. Kip said he didn't know what happened to the money after he had persuaded the donors to part with it in order that property might be returned to the country.

William Holmes, of Huntington, member of the state central committee, said that the committee believed it was acting legally in raising and expending the $10,000 fund during the campaign.

Mayor Fails to Sign Resolution For Beers Street Lengthening

Mayor Wilson is still withholding his approval from the Beers street extension resolution. Although the council passed the resolution more than a week ago the mayor has not yet affixed his signature to it. It has been estimated that it will cost $10,000 to extend the thoroughfare to Main street. The mayor has signified that he believes this money will be better spent for other improvement although he has made no official statement to that effect.

"Will you sign the resolution?" the mayor was asked today.

"I haven't as yet," he answered.

"Will you veto it?" he was asked next.

"I haven't as yet," was his answer.

HICKS, WHO GAVE UP ALL TO GO TO PRISON, IS FREED

Washington, July 16.—President Wilson today commuted to expire at once the jail term of Robert E. Hicks, the New York man who, after 12 years successful elusion of imprisonment for a violation of the postal code, gave up a prosperous business and surrendered himself. The Bowery Mission of New York, at which Hicks was a worker, and other organizations, appealed to the president for his release. He will be freed as soon as the department of justice can arrange certain formalities.
